Mislinja lies in the region that is facing issues with depopulation due to its lack of good infrastructural connections with the rest of the country. Public transportation is connecting the town of Mislinja to other municipalities by busses. Passengers can take their bicycles on the train to travel sustainably. But public transportation is not efficient enough to be an attractive mode of mobility.

Therefore, cars are still the most common means of transportation. Walking is not common because the infrastructure is not attractive enough. Cycling infrastructure is not well developed, but it is possible to cycle on the roads with sharrow marking in the town centre. There is a cycling path connecting Mislinja with one of the neighbouring municipalities and some more are planned to be built.
